LORD ELPHINSTONE PRESES.

LORD ELPHINSTONE PRESES.

The Honourable William Elphintlone moved, That the thanks of this Meeting be given to the Marquis of Graham, for his spirited efforts in the last selficon of Parliament, for obtaining a national Militia for Scotland, which was unanimically agreed to, and ordered to be published in the Edinburgh and Glassow news-papers.

The Meeting having heard a letter from the Marquis of Graham, addressed to the Shegist of this county, transmitting a bill for obtaining a national defence for Scotland? Also a letter from the Creech Scoretary of a Committee of Noblemen and Generalization met at Edinburgh, transmitting a sketch of a bill drawn up by them, and proposed to be laid before Perliament for procuring a constitutional defence for Scotland, together with the said bill and sketch. It was the unanimous opinion of the Meeting, that a Militia neight to be established for Scotland, together with the said bill and sketch. It was the unanimous opinion of the Meeting, that a Militia neight to be established for Scotland, together with any others of the Commissioners of Supply, and heritors of this county, who may happen to be at Edinburgh, in the course of the ensuing winter, as a Committee, to meet with the Gentlemen from other counties, in order to deliberate further upon the surgh and Glassow news-papers.

A Ta Meeting of the Freeholders of the country

NEIL CAMPBELL, Clerk.

A Ta Meeting of the Freeholders of the county of Forfar, held at Forfar the 1st day of October 1782 years, the Hon. Archibald Douglas of Douglas Pre'es; among other business, Mr Chalmers of Auldhar laid before the Meeting a letter from the Marquis of Graham, and copy of a bill presented by him to the House of Commons in May 1782, with the intended amendments thereon, for the better ordering the militia forces in that part of Great Britain called Scotland; and also a sketch of a bill for the better ordering the Fencible Men in Scotland, with observations thereon. Mr Graham of Fintric moved to have the opinion of the Meeting, Whether the present mode of desence is adequate to the protection of this country, or not? And the roll being called, it carried unanimously, "That it is not."

Sir David Carnesy then mored, That a Committee be appointed of the Gentlemen of the Country to meet or correspond with such as may be appointed by other counties, and to report their proceedings to any General Meeting of this Country, and with powers to the Convener of the Commissioners of Supply to call one for that purpose; which motion was unanimously agreed to; and the Meeting name the Honourable Archibald Douglas of Douglas, Sir David Carnege of Southek, Barpnet, Colonel Alexander Duncan of Lundie, Robert Graham of Fintrie, Mr William Naime advocate, John Rait of Anniston, John Græme writer to the fignet, or any of them, as a committee for that purpose.

The Sheriff-clerk laid before the Meeting a letter from Mr Alexander.

Fintrie, Mr William Naime advocate, John Rait of Anniston, John Græme writer to the fignet, or any of them, as a committee for that purpofe.

The Sheriff-clerk laid before the Meeting a letter from Mr Alexander Keith writer to the fignet, containing resolutions of the counties of Inverness, Moray, and Caithness, relative to freehold qualifications, which was read. And the Meeting having taken into their consideration the alarming abuses which prevail in this part of the united kingdom, in creating qualifications for electors of Members of Parliament, by splitting superiorities, and separating them from the property of lands, were of opinion that such qualifications are subversive of the freedom of elections, and resolved to concur with other counties in Scotland, in every legal measure, for obtaining a correction of these abuses, and for putting the rights of electors upon a proper sooting. And appoint Mr Douglas of Douglas, Sir David Carnegie, Colonel Duncan, Mr Graham of Fintrie, Mr Naime, Mr Rait, and Mr John Græme as a Committee, to meet and correspond with the Committees from other counties on the subject.

Mr Graham of Fintrie moved, That the thanks of the Meeting be transmitted to the Maiquis of Graham, for his attention to the honour of his country during the last session of Parliament, which was carried unanimously; and the Preses was requested to transmit the thanks of the county to his Lordhip accordingly. And they appoint their clerk to cause intimate these their resolutions in the Edinburgh newspapers.

PERTHSHIP RE.

IN the Michaelmas Meeting of the Freeholders of the Shire of Perth,

In the Michaelmas Meeting of the Frecholders of the Shire of Perth, held this day,

A Letter from Alexander Keith writer to the fignet, clerk to the Committees of the feweral Counties of Scotland, who met at Edinburgh upon the 5th of August last, for the purpose of taking into confideration the abuses which prevail in this part of the united kingdom, in the mode of creating Freehold Qualifications, being read,

The Meeting are of opinion, That the prefent laws respecting Freehold Qualifications, are attended with numerous inconveniencies, and that an amendment of them is highly requisite. They therefore name Sir John Ramsay of Banss, George Haldane of Gleneagles, David Smyth of Methyea, Mr William Nairn advocate, and William McDonald of St Martin, to be a committee from this county, to attend the Smyth of Methace, Mr William Nairn advocate, and William McDonald of St Martin, to be a committee from this county, to attend the meetings to be held at Edinburgh by the committees of other counties, to concert a proper plan for remedying the prefent inconveniencies, and to lay the fame before a future general meeting of the Freeholders of the county, which they are empowered to call, if necessary. And they appoint this resolution to be published in the news-papers.

AT the General Michaelmas Meeting of the Justices of Peace, and Fresholders of the county of Perth, the Meeting having taken into their most ferious consideration, the bill which was presented to Parliament last session, by the Marquis of Graham " for better ordering the Militia forces in Scotland, and also the sketch of a bill for better ordering the Fencisle Men in Scotland, framed by the Noblemen and Gentlemen who met lately at Edinburgh, and transsmitted to the several counties in Scotland for their consideration.

RESOLVED, That it is the Opinion of this Meeting,
That it is highly expedient and requifite, that this part of the United Kingdom thould at all times be provided with a proper and conflictational force, for its internal defence against foreign enemies, and for the support of the Crown, and the rights and liberties of the people; and that a certain portion of the Militia or Fencible Men thereof should be annually trained to the use of arms, for these great national purposes:
It being the boast and birthright of Freemen to be able to desend themselves and their country, and the degrading badge of slavery to be denied that most useful as well as honourable of all priviledges.

I. That at this time we are more particularly called upon to attend to felves and their country, and the degrading badge of flavery to be denied that most inferiol as well as honourable of all priviledges.

I. That at this time we are more particularly called upon to attend to this important object, when surrounded by foes. We are in imminent danger of being attacked and insuited, and the honour and fafety of the empire at stake; and, when we have reason to flatter ourselves that our wishes and endeavours to promote the security and welfare of the state will meet with encouragement and support from the wistom and generosity of those who have already declared in the acts establishing the Militia in England, "That a well ordered and well disciplined Militia is "essentially inexessary to the safety: pence, and prosperity of the king"dom;" And we can never suppose, that an odious and ill-timed distinction will be made between any of his Majesty's loyal subjects in this island, contrary to every principle of justice and sound policy.

II. That the Meeting do not entirely approve of either of the above modes of forming an internal force, now laid before us for our consideration, the first having copled too closely after the acts for establishing the Militia in England, and not being perfectly suited to the circumstances of this country; and the other having gone rather starther than was necessary in several particulars. But,

III. The Meeting are very clearly of opinion, That a plan more restricted, less expensive and burdensome to the country, yet sufficient for training the people, by ballot and rotation, to the exercise of arms, may easily be devised and put in practice, by the concurrent, steady, and animated public spirit of the Noblemen and Gentlemen in the several counties; and, for that end, that it would be most proper and necessary that Committees should be named by the different faires to meet together at Edinburgh in November next, in order to concert together the best mode of earrying this great and intensting national obieft into execution, and fo gether the best mode of earrying this great and interesting national object into execution, and for framing a new bill, to be presented to Parliament early in next session: And the Meeting appoint his Grace the Duke of Athol, the Right Honourable Lord Gray, Sir John Wedderburn of Ballendean, Sir John Ramfay of Banss, General Graham of Gorthie, Mr Haldane of Gleneagles, Mr Mercer of Aldie, Mr Far-Gorthie, Mr Haldane of Gleneagles, Mr Mercer of Aldie, Mr Farquharfon of Invereauld, Mr Nairn of Duntinnan, Mr Smyth of Methern, Mr M'Donald of St Martin, or any three of them, with full powers for that purpole; and authorife them to draw on the Collector of the county (in whose hands money is now lodged) for such sum as may be fixed as the proportion of this county for defraying the expense thereof. And the Meeting are of opinion, that, so soon as the Committees of the different counties have agreed on what, at this alarming period, is the most constitutional and proper method of defending this country, a meeting of this county should be called by their Committee to take the same into their farther consideration.

IV. The Meeting unanimously and heartily agree to return their best thanks to the Marquis of Graham, and to the other Members of Parliament who, with so much spirit and ability, supported, last selfion, liament who, with fo much spirit and ability, supported, last session, the bill then presented; and also to the Noblemen and Gentlemen who met lately at Edinburgh, and with so much zeal and propriety attended o the honour and interest of their country.—And they appoint these solutions to be published in the Edinburgh news-papers.

Yesterday it was considently said, that exceeding good news from Gibraltar was received by a merchant in the city, from Mr Factor of Dover, flating that he had advices by the way of Calais, that the brave General Elliot had given an additional and recent proof of his good conduct and courage, by gaining a new advantage over the enemy. The manner in which the fuccess was attained is differently talked of, and as we could not ascertain the truth of the circumstance, we present our readers with the different accounts in circulation : By some it was said, that the General had made a sally, conducted with equal vigour and wissom, and that the effect was, the destruction and capture of near two thousand men, the seizure of 150 pieces of capture of near two thousand men, the seizure of 150 pieces of cannon, and the demolition of several important batteries: By others it was asserted, that the General had suffered the Spanish gun-boats to approach within the distance of a point-blank shot, that he had then opened a newly erected and concealed battery upon them, which played with such success, that he sunk a great number of their boats, and with them upwards of 2000 men. As the news is said to have come through France, it deserves some credit. The French sirst gave us an intimation of Rodney's glorious success of the 12th of April. Would it had been followed by news equally promising from the same quarter since!

It is said his Majesty is more than ordinarily anxious about the fate of Gibraltar. His Majesty has had the model of the rock and fortress removed to the Queen's Palace from the Tower, and has collected every good map and plan of the place, that has been published either in Great-Britain or on the con-

Lord Shelburne's fituation is variously talked of; by those who profess moderation, his continuance in office is not only wished for, but expected; by others, who are violent Americans, it is confidently said, that he must go out, and that when ever the subject of America is touched on in the Cabinet, the Chancellor, the Duke of Richmond, and General Conway in-stantly rife and quit the room. As Cabinet affairs are now as "public as the noon day sun," neither parties conversation is much to be relied on.

much to be relied on.

Yelterday morning Lord and Lady Rodney set off for Windfor to keep the birth day of the Princess Royal, his Lordship having received a letter of invitation the preceding day from the King.

On Sunday Lord Rodney honoured Vice-Admiral Barton with a visit at Hampstead, and from thence went to dine at Caen-Wood with Lord Manssield. The streets of Hampstead were amazingly crouded, to testify their approbation of his Lordship's important services to his King and country.

Sunday morning advice was received at the Admiralty from the Downs, of Commotore Elliot, with a small squadron, having sailed for his former station, to prevent the sailing of some flout privateers from St Maloes and Morlain, which intended putting to sea in a sew days, in order to pick up some of the homeward bound Jamaica sleet, should they be separated by gales of wind. The following is a list of the ships, viz.

The Resolution, seven or eight days before her arrival, felt in with a fleet off Cape St Vincent's, confisting of 300 sail, destined to the Cape of Good Hope, the West-Indies, and America. They were convoyed by three ships of 74 guns, three of 64, and six frigates of 36 guns each, all new ships. We took two of their transports, one with a contract of the stransports. We took two of their transports, one with 250 tons of gun-powder, and the other with part of the regiment of Luxem-burgh, of four battalions, going to the Cape. The fleet has fince been dispersed by a hard gale of wind, several of them were dismasted, and 80 of them had put back. The Resolu-tion sell in with sive Spanish ships of the line, cruizing for the Havannah sleet; one of the latter the Resolution took. A letter from St Mary's, in Scilly, says, that last Thursday se'ennight, the wind blew a hurricane, and two vessels, one French and the other Dutch, were drove with violence upon the rocks, immediately went to pieces, and both crews were drowned. We took two of their transports, one with 250 tuns of gun-

A gentleman at Paris, writes to his correspondent in London, that, on account of the great probability that Britain will be under the necessity of acknowledging America independent, and that a peace will be speedily concluded, the French merchants who had formed the resolution of giving no further credit to the Americans, had abandoned that idea, and were making preparations for compleating all the orders which remain unexecuted. unexecuted.

One of the happy consequences of a reconciliation with A-merica will be a vall increase of trade to this country, which, merica will be a vait increase of trade to this country, which, through the medium of the Colonies, will become the great receptacle of the wealth of Spain. In return for British produce exported to America, we shall receive from the people of that country Spanish gold and silver in bullion and in coin, belides a great variety of valuable drugs, and the other most profitable articles of commerce.

Letters from Petersburgh of the 29th of August fay, that the great movements and preparations now carrying on through the Rushan empire, afford great reason to believe that hosfilities either against the Turks, or the Tartars are at no great distance, that great bodies of troops are marching towards Klow. Mohilow, the Ularaine, and the governments of Astracan and Aloph: That a regiment of infantry and a detachment of artillery had marched from Petersburgh: That four other regiments had marched from Livonia, for the confines of Tartary : That the Admiralty had, with the greatest expedition, dispatched 1000 feamen to the Black Sea. All are making with unusual, and indeed with almost incredible dispatch, clearly demonfrates, that the flame of discord is not extinguished among the Tartars, as the public were given to believe; and the Ottoman ministry, whose great provinces seem to be almost all in-fested with the spirit of revolt, are likely to have a vast deal of bufiness upon their hands.

From the London Papers, Of. 1.

It is with the greatest pleasure we inform our readers, that a gentleman arrived in town yesterday from France, with the following important intelligence : That, on the 12th of September, the Spaniards made their grand attack, by fea, on the garrifon of Gibraltar; and that on the 23th, the day following, their floating batteries and gun-boats were all fet on fire, by red-hot flot, and totally destroyed. It is imagined that upwards of two thousand men perilbed in the conflagration, which lasted for many hours. It is faid their seet were in the bay, and not able to render them any affiffance:

From another correspondent we have the following :- Yeflerday in the afternoon an express arrived from Paris, addressed to amerchant of considerable eminence in the city, and which brought the following glorious intelligence: That the grand attack, to long mediated by the French and Spaniards against Gibraltar, had taken place on the 12th ult. in the morning, assisted by all their gan-beats, stoating batteries, &c. &c. The event was a total overthrow of the enemy. Their guwboats, &c. were mostly funk, in which were upwards of two to work t with a prodigious flaughter of those troops that were ordered to florm under cover of the machines. These advices further add, that our brave Governor, observing the discomsture of the enemy, made a fally from the garrifon with three battalions of British infantry, and two of Hanoverians; the earnage was then renewed with redoubled horror, the enemy flying at every quarter with the utmost precipitation. The victors, off this occasion, destroyed all the works of the enemy, and captured near one hundred pieces of heavy artiflery. These important near one hundred pieces of heavy artiflery. These important advices were received by a gentleman of so unimpeached a character in the city, that they were parterfally credited, and a messenger was dispatched to the King at Windsor, with the information.

The accounts from Gibraltar, which we have from a correspondent who is generally very well informed, says, that on the night of the 13th of September, General Ethiot permitted aniards to advance with all their floating-batteries and gun-boats to the spot where they intended to act, and suffered them to moor without interraption; when, before they had fired a fingle gun or mortar, he began fuch a dreadful cannonading with red-hot balls, that he destroyed the whole, without having received the least injury in the garrison. Two of the Spa-nish floating batteries blew up, and every soul on board perished; and the rest, with the gun boats, were burnt to the water's edge, and then funk.

The accounts from France fay, the affault on Gibraltar was general, though principally carried on from the fea by the enemy's floating batteries and gur-boats; that General Elliot however, being apprized of their intention to attack him on fuch a day, caufed every necessary preparation to be made for their reception, and particularly by ordering all the batteries towards the sea to be supplied with stoves for heating the short to which circumstance, we understand, the defeat of the enemy is chiefly to be attributed, as the red-hot balls fet fire to many of the floating batteries, and funk feveral of the gon-The above accounts further add, that the General' humanity not suffering him to see the poor wretches in the floating batteries perish in the flames, he had fent out boats to their affiftance, and faved the lives of a great many, from whom he learnt that their loss must exceed 1500 men.

It is univerfally reported, and confidently believed, at Paris, that the Spaniards, &c. on the grand day of attack against Gib raltar, had been repulled with great lofs, not only part of their batteries being destroyed, but, in a subsequent fally, above two thousand of their men killed, wounded, or taken prisoners.

The mortification the Spaniards must experience in confequence of this repulfe, after having been at fuch immense ex-pence, trouble, and labour, may induce them to persist in their determination of engaging Lord Howe, as the only hope they have now left to fubdue this garrifon, is by defeating his Lord-hip; on which event every one feets to reft perfectly fatisfied.

It is univerfally believed (fays a correspondent) that the combined fleets were at fea, to oppose the relief of Gibraltar, before Lord Howe could be upon the Spanish coast.

Most people are ignorant of what gun-boats are; for which reason a correspondent desires us to inform our readers, that they are long low boats, with a fingle gun planted on their bows. The Spaniards use a 24 pounder; we have only eigh-teen-pounders in our's, that have been sent out in the frame, and put together at Gibraltar.

As we cannot but regret exceedingly that any thing should occur at this period to diminish the pleasure of the public on the above interesting occasion, it is with the utmost concern we acquaint our readers, from the information of a gentleman of indisputable veracity, who arrived last night from Paris, that a report universally prevails in that city, and is confidently believed there, that Hyder Ally, affifted by the forces which the French landed in India foon after the action with Sir Edward Hughes, had invelted Madrass, and that that important fort is now ac-

We may depend upon it, that no dispatches will be received from Lord Howe until next Saturday or Sunday at foonett; about which time, if the wind remains fair, we may be fure of hearing from that quarter, as the dispatches being brought in a fingle veffel, the voyage will of course be made in a much shorter time than that outwards, the keeping the sleet together occasioning great delay.

the state of the s	Party States

Upon a calculation from the above return, it should seem, that the number of killed and wounded at Gibraltar, in the course of a twelvemonth, does not exceed 80 of the former, and 180 of the latter; the disproportion, therefore, between our loss and that of the enemy (calculating from their own account of killed and wounded, is altonishing; for, by that account, they acknowledge to have 12 mee killed, and 46 wounded in five days by our fire. Admitting, however, upon an average, that their loss does not exceed one week with the other the year throughout, to killed and 40 wounded, the disproportion will then stand thus:

Killed, Wounded. 2,080 520 So that the enemy lofe annually, by our fire alone, 440 killed and 1900 wounded more than we do, which added to the number ber they must lose by sickness (and we are affured from good authority, their men die four and five a day) renders it extremely probable that fince the fiege of Gibraltar began, which was in August 1779, the King of Spain has not lost less than 8000 men, without having hitherto made one vigorous effort to take the place, notwithstanding he has had an army of 18 or 20,000 men almost constantly encamped before it.

It is said, that at the last meeting of the the declaration of A——n I——was figured by a great Personage, and has been already transmitted to Paris.

About the beginning of June last Mr Adams obtained in Holland a loan from the Seven Provinces of 150,000 !. fterling, for the use of the United States of North America, payable at the ratification of the Tremy of Commerce agreed on between

The very great and unnecessary force faid to be employed by the French in an attack upon our fettlements in Hudson's Bay, renders the story incredible to every person who thinks a moment upon the subjects

His Sicilian Majesty has declared to the Ministers from France, Spain, Holland, and England, that he intends to obferve an exact neutrality with respect to the differences now sub-fishing between the belligerem powers, and that he has accord-ingly given orders to treat their ships that put into his ports in fuch a manner as to prevent complaints of a preference being thewn to those of either nation.

The damage done by the late high winds on the coalt of Holland, is, we learn, confiderable; and there are letters in town which fay, that upwards of forty keels were either funk or driven to fea, and feveral lives loft who were on board.

People in distressed circumstances, says à correspondent, are not apt to paint their fituation in flattering terms; but feen to have a natural propentity to magnify their lufferings, either to excite admiration of their fortitude, or compassion for their miffortunes. Certain it is, that divers letters from Gibraltar a. gree, that the garrison has received supplies from the Barbary coast, which the natives have been the more readily induced to furnish, by the very liberal manner in which they were rewarded by the brave Governor. It is, indeed, contrary to the naof things to suppose, that a large body of men, confined to a barren rock, and living entirely upon falted provisions; could so long escape the ravages of that cruel difease the scurvy; and therefore, we may conclude, admitting that live flock has, at particular times, been fold at exceptiant prices, that the garrison must have received frequent supplies of fresh provisions and vegetables.

The following is a Copy of the resolutions entered into by the State of Delaware, at their General Assembly, held on Tues. day the 18th day of June, 1782.

Resolved unanimously, First, that the United States affembled in Congress have, by virtue of their act of confederation, the sole and exclusive right and power of determining upon peace or war, and also of concluding alliancies and treatie Secondly, That the honour and true interests of the United States require an inviolable adherence to the engagements of the treaty between his most Christian Majesty and the faid States. Thirdly, That any man, or body of men, who shall dare, without having previously obtained the confent of the said United States assembled in Congress, to enter into any negociation concerning a peace or a truce with the King of Great Britain. or with his agents, shall be considered and treated as enemies to the said States.

Fourthly, That all the forces shall be called forth to enable Congress to profecute the war, till such time as a peace can be obtained that is compatible with our fæderative union, and our national faith.

Ordered, That a copy of the above resolutions shall be immediately sent to the Delegates of this State in Congress for their instruction. (Sent for concurrence.)

In Council, 19th June, 1782, read and agreed to. Signed by order of the Council.

"Some dispatches from Cibraltar, dated September 1, says, that from the 15th of August, to the 1st of September, the English killed or wounded between 50 or 60 of the beliegers; among the latter, an officer of Crillon's volunteers, and apother of the Spanish artillery. The works are all nearly similaed, and, in about three days, will be ready to play upon Gib-raltar. On the 30th of August there were feven butteries completely finished, and the others were nearly so. Don Bonsventura Morend is appointed General Commandant of them, and the Prince of Naifau Major General. The combined fleus are hourly expected; and, it is now publicly faid, that they have the most positive orders to oppose the relief of the place to the utmost of their power. If no unforeseen accident happens, it now appears certain, that the grand attack will take place on or 6th inftant.

" Hitherto the English always suspended their fire whenever they faw our Princes viliting the trenches; but perhaps the too numerous gilded troop that attended their Highnesses on Thursday last, did not please the enemy; certain it is, that they fired upon Comte d'Artois, and that they took a tolerable good aim; two cannon balls went just over his head, and one fell within fix feet, the other within ten feet of his Royal Highness; the Duke de Bourbon was then by his fiden

" Don Louis de Cordova will foon be at anchor in Gloraltar Bay, determined to wait in that polition for Lord Howe, according to the plan fuggested by Comte d'Estaing. The combined fleets, out at sea, consist of no more than 38 fail of the line; but on their return, they will find 7 more at Algeli-ras; which, with the Protecteur, of 74 guns, and the Dicta-teur, and Sufficient, from Toulon, will make the whole amount to 48 fail of the line, a number greatly superior to that of Lord

Extrast of a letter from Paris, Sept. 17.

" Stability feems to be a thing unknown in the political world. The opinions which lately prevailed, that Comre d'E-flaing was to take the command of our fleet in the West Indies, the enfuing campaign, begins now to lofe ground; and doubt forceeds to conviction. The general opinion now its. that no commander will be appointed to that flation, till after the close of the Court Martial, by which Comte de Graffe is to be tried. The disadvantageous impression which the Public. received of that officer, begins to wear away; the whole Court of Verfailles appears now to view him in a much less criminal light than could well be conceived; and the Public feem now full of the idea that he will be honourably acquitted. If fuch an event should happen, will the King restore to him the com-mand in the West Indies? This is a question not easily to be determined; but there are not wanting men of the very first character and rank about the Court, who do not hesitate to anfwer in the affirmative.

" A report is now current here, and generally credited, that the allied Courts of Bourbon have refolved to fend off from Cadiz, immediately after the fate of Gibraltar is determined, a formidable fleet to St Domingo, where it will form a junction with the fquadron under Don Solano. It is further faid, that a great body of troops is to be fent with the fleet, to be employed in some important expedition; but against what place is kept a profound secret. It is conjectured here, that the expedition is intended against Jamaica; but this part is no more than conjecture." Extract of a letter from Rotterdam, Sept. 10. " The Mooths of the Maefe, Hondt, and Scheldt are for well granded by the English cruifers, which are very numerous, that not a trading veffel attempts to put to fea, though there are fax men of war here idle, which is difficult to account for. The Helversladt packet, from Lifbon, is notwithstanding a rived at Flushing, having passed through the English curters. " Rear-Admiral Jan Kuicnam has a flag on board the Naffau, of 56 guns, but has not yet received any orders to fail, which is a great disappointment to the merchants, who conceived the fquadron here would have been appointed convoy to their thips for the Western Islands, &a:."

It is now, we believe, tole-noly well authenticated, that Count Dillon arrived last week at guadaloupe with two ships of the line, a 50 gun ship, and a figate, from the Cape, having on board some of those troops that were to have been employed in the expedition against Ja-paica. We have it from good authority, that an affair of the most ferious nature happened at St Domingo, fome little time after the arrival of the remnant of Mons. de Graffe's thattered square the arrival of the remnant of Monf. de Graffe's thattered squadron. The French officers of the troops on board the fleet, entaged at a defeat, which had so greatly tarnished the French flag, accused their navy of misconduct, and were continually loading the officers of that department with epithets of cowardice and folly. The army went, it seems, so far as to paste up on the doors of the Theatre, a most scurrilous libes, replete with abuse of the whole navy. A party was made by the mistary to support, and another was made by the navy to resent this flagrant infult;—a most bloody tragedy was the consequence; so officers of different ranks were left dead upon the soot, and a multitude of others wounded. When the person this flagrant infult;—a. most bloody tragedy was the consequence; 60 officers of different ranks were left dead upon the fipot, and a multitude of others wounded. When the person who brought these accounts left the Cape, the disturbances had not then substituted at the strength of the fine and strength of the first service at the French islands from the Cape, that Sir Samuel (now Lord) Hood, with 6 fail of the sine, and some frigates, had come up with the large and valuable fleet from St Doningo, and had captured 70 sail of inerchantmen, together with their convoy, confishing of four line of battle ships.

Though nothing has appeared in the London Gazette, brought by this day's poll, concerning the destruction, by the brave Governor Ession, of the floating batteries, &c, fitted out brave Governor Efflot, of the floating batteries, &c., fitted out by the Spaniards against Gibrakar, yet there cannot remain a doubt of the authenticity of that intelligence. The London papers of this day are full of that favourable event. We have, bedden, two letters from persons of the first distinction, and in official capacities, who give the same agreeable accounts; and, though these differ very immaterially from the intelligence contained in the London papers, we think it our duty to lay them before our readers, as more to be depended on than any thing which might appear as the report from a common news-paper. The letters alluded to are in the following terms:

The letters alluded to are in the following terms:

"On the 13th ult, the enemy made their grand attack with their floating batteries, gun-boats, &c. &c. They had fearcely got in order, when General Elliot poured upon them fuch a torrent of red hot balla, shells, &c. that they were fet on fire universally, and the whole were either blown up, or burnt to the warer's edge, and funk. The preparations of the enemy were thus defeated, with every circumstance of difgrace and loss. Above 1500 men perished: Some were carried off in the enemies boats; others faved in those which General Elliot fent to their relief."

"A letter from France to a person at London stared at Paris."

"A letter from France to a person at London, dated at Paris the 26th of September, says, that the grand attack on Gibraltar had commenced, and that General Elliot had destroyed all their gun-boats, with upwards of 2000 men, and 184 pieces of canton; and that it was reported at Paris, that the siege would be raised about the 16th.

"Great credit is given to the above account."

Extract of a letter from London, October 1.

"By the best authority, we are informed, that the commencement of hostilities by the Imperialists against the Turks; is entered upon, as the identifer resort to oblige the French to accede to the treaty of peace between Great Britain and America. France being in alliance with the Turks, must unavoidably direct a great part of her land, forces to their assistance; and, should this turn the scale in favour of the Turks, ance; and, should this turn the scale in favour of the Turks, it is then Russia must throw her weight of power in favour of the Emperor. This will demand the mival affistance of the French, which must necessarily debilitate them so much, as to render them incapable of pursuing their ambitious schemes of universal dominion, which they must posses, if Great Britain should fall the sacrifice of that general war. The existence of Great Britain, is the only security for the other European powers, against the encreasing strength and consequence of France. So that; although we have seen the powers of Europe wink at our distresses, until our consequence was reduced to the present level, we shall find our existence as a people preserved, merely as the guardian from a more dangerous and encroaching power. For, it is only the naval authority of Great Britain that obliges the French to divide their attention from raising such a land force, as would sweep all the patry and divided States of the Empire into oblivion. And from her connection with the Turks, Russa, would then, in all probability, nection with the Turks, Rusha, would then, in all probability, become merely a colony to drain off her dregs of population. -From this view of the confequences attendant on the fall of Great Britain, we may always rest assured, that; although our power may never rife to its former zenith, it will never be fuffered to fet on the horizon of European politics.

" By a transport which has run from Gibraltar, and arrived in the Downs, we are informed; that Lord Howe, after having landed his stores, provisions, &c. &c. which he carried to the relief of Gibráltar, again put to fea, in order to meet the combined flects; and that he faw them go into the port of Alge-

" The fleet now in the East Indies is by far the most respeciable that Britain ever had in that quarter. The most powerful fleet there last war, which was commanded by the Admirals Pocock, Stephens, and Cornish, consisted only of one thip of 74, two of 70, four of 64, four of 60, and two of 54 guns. Sir Edward Hughes has with him at this time, one of 80, five of 74, two of 70, eight of 64, and two of 50 guns. The Gibraltar, of 80 guns, (late Phenix, a Spanish prize taken by Lord Rodney, with the Spanish Admiral Don Juan de Langara on board) though only a two-decker, is equal to most ships of 90 guns. Her metal is 36, 18, and 9 pounders.

"An order yesterday was made by the Privy Council, to encourage a colony from General to settle in this country. Some most respectable citizens from that oppressed republic have been soliting an asylum in this rising land of liberty, for a number of their inhabitants who give the preference to Iteland, and propose to bring with them the arts and manufactures that have so long rendered that city the envy of Europe, and the continued object of the jealousy of France.

"At a post assembly of the Aldermen, Sheriss, and Commons, which was held yesterday at the Thossel, to take into consideration an address of thanks to the Duke of Portland, Mr Napper Tandy, after speaking to the particular business of the day, the wicked and insidious scheme (as he termed it) of raising fix regiments of Fencibles, which he reproduced in the strongest terms, as pregnant with every evil to the constitution?

the day, the wicked and infidious scheme (as he termed it) of raising fix regiments of Fencibles, which he reproduted in the strongest terms, as pregnant with every evil to the constitution of this kingdom, said we might look in vain to the emancipation of our country, or the extension of our trade, if a despot of a Minister, by his bare ipse dixit, was to raise whatever number of mercenaries he pleased, on this impoverished country; and that at a time, when the panders of administration would tell us, we are not bound by any laws, but those of our own making. He was then proceeding to offer to the confideration of the assembly some resolutions, when Mr Leet and Mr Sankey institled on telling the house, as the only means they could devise of getting rid of a question, which seems to meet with the universal derestation of every friend to his country.—Mr Tandy exposed the conduct of these Fencible advocates, (as he stiled them) and here a point of order arrose, in which he was well supported by Mr Binns and Mr Molhern; but the Sherist (Dick) giving it against him, the house was told, and there appearing to be only 37 members present, instead of 40, which makes a house, they were obliged to break up, which, for the present, prevents the sense of the corporation being known on this important matter. But, we hear, the gentlement who have been foiled by this manceuvre, intend applying for another post affembly, when there is no doubt but a sufficient number of the members will attend, notwithstanding every never is exerted to prevent them.

"At the meeting, this day, of the delegates from the Vorsinter of Tant, is improper and unnexessary.—The meeting did not break up till five o'clock this afternoon."

THIS TIME, is improper and unnecessary:—The meeting did not break up till five o'clock this afternoon."
